

What do you need to know about teaching primary writers?

Into Writing

The Primary Teacher's Guide to Writing Workshop

Megan S. Sloan

Foreword by Vicki Spandel

"What should my teaching look like
day to day?"

Into Writing
answers your questions with all the practical savvy, student-

sample guideposts, and specific, actionable advice you'd expect from a veteran teacher. And with her warmth and can-do spirit, nationally known staff developer Megan Sloan will win you over and lead you to teaching that your young writers will find as satisfying as you will.

If you're new to writing workshop,
Into Writing will
be a handy,
inspirational guide
for implementing and sustaining it. If you want to improve your workshop, you'll have a troubleshooting manual that's easy to use and that's as focused on helping writers reach their potential as you are.

"What about
minilessons?
Conferences and assessment?"

*The idea for this book began with teachers' questions about writing workshop. I decided to try to answer these questions—not as an expert, but as a teacher in the trenches, just like many of you.

Megan Sloan has answers about working with developing writers

"How do you get young students to write independently for a sustained period of time?"

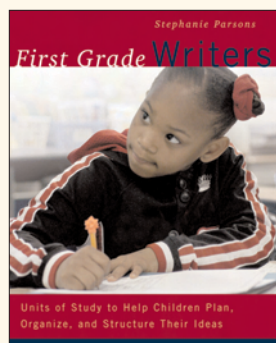

As a teacher at Cathcart Elementary School in Washington and as a presenter for the Bureau of Educational Research, Megan Sloan hears questions like this all the time. With Into Writing, Megan, author of Teaching Young Writers to Elaborate and Trait-Based Mini-Lessons for Teaching Writing, answers your questions about how to help primary-grade writers by showing you how to set up and sustain a writing workshop. This flexible powerful framework can help all developing writers meet expectations—including reluctant writers and English learners.

"For me, there was enormous satisfaction in seeing how Megan Sloan interweaves process, workshop, and traits in this book.... It is so gratifying to hear from a teacher who really understands this relationship."

—Vicki Spandel, Author of Creating Young Writers
